

International Conference Applied Psychology
November 26-30, 2018 Saxion, Deventer

“All Inclusive”

Some people are better at looking at things from a wider perspective than others – they can think outside the box. Individuals, companies and organizations strive for continuity to provide basic safety. Innovation is crucial to survive in the modern world. Sometimes we need to be quick and exploit new opportunities when we see them. In such cases, continuity can stand in the way of agility. Modern technology and serendipity enable us to move forward without losing stability. On an individual level, we might experience anxiety or even get into a panic when interacting in a modern and lean world. This is precisely why it is crucial to invest in an inclusive organization and society. How shall we tackle the dilemma between Lean and serendipity in the future?

Saxion's Applied Psychology program is highly committed to inclusiveness. During this week you will be introduced to the possibilities for the Applied Psychologist in the future in an inclusive society. You will also experience what it is like to solve a problem and work together in a multicultural setting. By following lectures and (creative) workshops you will be given the tools to start an intercultural Applied Psychology assignment.

Groups for the overarching assignment are small, so there will be plenty of room for personal contact. During the conference you will stay in a hotel in or just outside the historic center of Deventer (with two or more people in a room). When necessary bicycle rental will be included, so you can travel easily between the city / Saxion and the hotel. Further information regarding the accommodation will be announced as soon as possible.

Possible topics during this conference:

- Lean and serendipity in organizations
- Limits of normal distribution
- Inclusiveness and solidarity
- Other analyses, techniques and methods in Psychology
- Abnormality versus normality
- Applied psychology in the future
- Employability
- Multicultural society, common grounds or differences?
- Countervailing power, how to learn from criticism?
- Gender
- Freedom or mediocrity, the power of mediocrity
- Autism
- Risk of biological and technological determinism

The costs for the Deventer program will be € 199, - including accommodation, bicycle rental (when necessary), breakfast and dinner on Thursday. Deventer offers a variety of nice restaurants at a reasonable price. An evening program is provided on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday. The language of instruction will be English.

Have you become enthusiastic about the theme “All Inclusive” and do you want to spend a week at a lively college in the characteristic and cozy Hanseatic city of Deventer? Then register for this conference with the ICAP coordinator of your own institution.
